Hole Attic

by John Azmuth dazmuth@gmail.com

1

Max and I stood at the peeling door with a ratty "204" along the jamb, except the "0" existed only as an outline. The apartment building was decades past its prime and creaked and popped with every movement. We composed ourselves, smoothing hair and tucking shirts. He nodded, I nodded, he knocked. The click-clack of heels on hardwood approached. For several seconds nobody on either side of the door breathed. She was inspecting us through the peephole or doing her own composing. When it opened Max and I gasped at the blast of hot air and the scalding strawberry-blonde hottie in matching fire-red bustier, thong, garter, and floral lace pumps.

"Thank God both of you have nice eyes," she said. Max and I inspected each other quickly then looked back at her. Max's wavy black hair and wide cheekbones accentuated his deceptively peaceful dark-brown eyes. He had one of those fifty-dimple smiles and a bellowing laugh like a mischievous Santa Claus.

"Nice place you got here," Max said as we surveyed the living room.

"You want a drink?"

"Yeah, thanks," Max said and plopped heavily on the leather love seat. "Vodka soda, vodka tonic, anything vodka will do." I never drank during these activities, but sometimes after if it was traumatic enough.

"You boys have your papers I hope."

We handed her our blue envelopes and she opened them with shaking fingers.

"You too, right," Max said.

She motioned across the room. "The table."

I was closer and opened her Blū: Test date yesterday at 4:30pm, all negative, heart looked good with low blood pressure, high oxygen blood count, positive for birth control, safe marker count, notarized and stamped by the clinic. Unless she barebacked some junkie in the 15 hours since then we were in good shape.

She bent over in front of Max and he bit her ass and rubbed her panties. I sat across on the sofa and took my shoes off. As Max's hand slipped beneath her thong she stared directly into my eyes and bit her lip. Leon roared to life and I hurried with the socks. I unbuckled my pants and stood to pull them down and my cock peeked from my boxer's front slit as she bit her lip with more teeth than before. She took my member like it was made of chocolate or ice cream or both. Max slid inside and she choked on me, but quickly recovered and worked it like a seasoned pro.

After several hours we were all exhausted but since both Max and I still had ragers she wouldn't leave us alone. We stood face to face in the kitchen, drenched in sweat, as she knelt and alternated sucking us both.

"You close?" he asked. I shook my head. "Me neither. One thing'll do it for sure, and fast." I rolled my eyes.

"What's that?" she asked and slapped my head on her tongue.

I lifted her up and tossed her over my shoulder, her glorious wet aroma wafting through my mouth and nostrils. I carried her to the bed and sat on the edge with my abs clenched tight. She sat facing me and rocked ferociously and I hoped Max would take his time with the lube so I could just come already and I was close, very close, but she stopped with a sharp inhale because he was rubbing her asshole. A glob of lube landed on my inner thigh and I flinched.

"I've never had two in me at once before," she said as I laid down flat, she shuffled her knees higher on the bed, and looked over her shoulder at Max.

"Relax, baby. We'll treat you right," he said. Max worked her anus for several minutes and was still not sure she could take it, but she knew it was now or never, and begged him to work it in, but slowly, which of course he would, but she just had to say it aloud. Max managed, and we gave her what-for for about five more minutes when I came, causing her to come, followed dramatically by Max.

We laid on the bed, saying nothing, breathing heavily, when out of the corner of my right eye I saw the closet door move. It had been closed when we first came into this room an hour ago. I perched on my elbows.

"You have a cat?"

"No."

As most of the blood still hadn't made it to my brain, standing was awkward, and I tried to move stealthily to the door but tripped on at least three things on my way over, slamming the door closed and bumping my nose into it. The shuffling behind the door proved I was not paranoid. I threw it open, posing like a ninja, my sword whipping back and forth. A mostly bald middle-aged man holding a fancy video camera huddled beneath some coats and long dresses. I reached down and pulled it from his hands then tossed it to Max.

"What the hell's going on here?" I screamed.

"Any more cameras?" Max asked.

She looked embarrassed. "That's my husband. He wanted to watch."

"Yes, that is all, please, please don't hurt me," he blubbered. I moved clothes out of the way to see him better. I understood right away.

"Any more cameras?" I asked firmly. He violently shook his head.

"I told you no camera!" she yelled at him.

"I'm sorry; I had to be able to watch it again."

Max held the memory card so we could all see it before he tossed it in a high arc into the toilet.

"Nice shot," I said.

"I always got the best touch afterwards," Max said and blew a kiss at her.

I backed away from the husband but my eyes never left him. The cuckold and his wife refused to look at each other.

"So, can we call ya sometime," Max asked with a wink.

"Shut up shut up!" she screamed. "Get the hell out."

Max and I stumbled into pants and shirts, the couple silent and brooding, her on the bed covered in natural and artificial lube and semen and sweat and spit and shit and him whimpering on the floor of the closet.